THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Can a court order a noncustodial parent to pay one-half of a child's parochial high school tuition? This question was recently decided by an Illinois Appellate Court. Apparently this issue had never before been decided under Illinois law.

In this case, the mother and father were divorced twelve years earlier. The mother remarried, and converted to the Catholic faith. When her son entered the fourth grade, she enrolled him in a parochial school.

When the boy reached high school, the parochial school tuition increased dramatically. The father testified at trial that he preferred that his son attend the public high school. He also told the trial court that he did not have the means to contribute one-half of the boy's tuition.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the trial court ordered the father to pay one-half of his son's yearly tuition. On appeal, the father conceded that the custodial parent had the right to determine a child's religious training and education. He also acknowledged that it would be his obligation to contribute toward educational expenses for a child to attend college. However, the father felt that a distinction should be made between college educational expenses and educational expenses for a minor child, since a minor has access to a public school system.

The Appellate Court felt that it was in the discretion of the trial court to order the father to pay one-half of the boy's parochial school tuition. The court noted that the boy had been attending parochial school since the fourth grade, without objection from the father. The court also noted that the father had the ability to pay. Under these circumstances, the court felt it was appropriate for the boy to receive a private education.

State no longer enforcing jail, juvenile home standards

County officials may be "off the hook" for violations of state regulations at the Madison County Juvenile Detention Home.

Budget cuts at the Illinois Department of Corrections this summer resulted in the dismantling of the division responsible for inspecting local detention facilities, including juvenile homes and adult jails, said Corrections spokesman Brian Fairchild.

The Madison County detention home has been cited several times in recent years for overcrowding and a lack of toilet facilities.

Earlier this year, the state threatened to file suit against the county if the problems were not corrected.

Since July 1, however, when the detention standards division was disbanded, the Department of Corrections has not had the ability to follow through with such threats, Fairchild said.

"We are no longer in the business of enforcing those standards," Fairchild said, though he cautioned local officials against ignoring the regulations.

"Those standards were originally put there to protect counties from lawsuits from detainees," Fairchild said.

Bob Astorian, director of court services for the county, said the juvenile home was last inspected shortly before the detention standards division was dismantled.

"(Inspectors) were supposed to get back to the County Board but I haven't heard anything since," Astorian said. Court services is the county department that oversees the juvenile facility.

The 21-bed facility was built in 1969 and is usually above capacity. State regulations require toilets in each room; detainees at the Madison County facility must use a bathroom at the end of the corridor.

The home has also been criticized for not having a sprinkler system and for other apparent fire safety violations.

Bringing the facility up to code would cost an estimated $1.3 million, including $400,000 to install toilets in each room, officials said. Building a new home, on the other hand, would cost an estimated $3 million.

County Board members are expected to broach the subject of what to do about the detention home when budget talks begin this fall.

The county has agreements with 18 Southern Illinois counties to accept juvenile detainees when there is room.

The fee charged other counties per detainee was increased Oct. 1 from $50 a day to $70 a day, said home administrator Steve Bowker. The increase was needed to keep three detention home employees on staff, employees who would otherwise have been laid off because of state funding cuts, Bowker said.

The only other option for raising money appears to be increasing taxes, a move that would require voter approval.

The property tax levy dedicated to juvenile home operations is already at the legal limit, 16.7 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Increasing that levy would require a referendum.

Starr has doubts on Scott plan

By Ann-Marie Campos
Staff writer

With military airplanes flying overhead, Congressional candidate Mike Starr stood at the northwest entrance to Scott Air Force Base Monday to express his concerns about the Scott Joint-Use project.

"This could be a valuable addition to the economic development of Southwest Illinois," said Starr, R-Carbondale, who is challenging incumbent Congressman Jerry Costello, D-Bellefonte. "But I'm a teacher. I know the value of homework. And as far as Scott Joint-Use is concerned, the homework gets an incomplete."

Noting that the airline industry is being downsized, the instability of the St. Louis-based Trans World America, the Expansion of Lambert Airport in St. Louis, the impact on taxpayers as well as the noise and safety factors, Starr called for the need for more extensive market research for the $30 million project.

"I don't think anyone knows the market," he said. "About three-fourths of the nation's air cargo is currently carried on passenger airlines, but even the proponent of this project admits the only passenger travel we'll see here is commuter flights to a handful of cities." The commuter flights are expected to travel to Springfield, Chicago and St. Louis.

"The public is being sold this project based upon speculation," Starr added.

Other politicians and military officials, favoring the airport, have estimated 10,700 additional jobs to result from the project. However, Starr said the number of direct jobs at the airport would be approximately 2,900.

"The construction phase would have a positive response on the area, but (construction) isn't paying the bill," he said.

Early eating habits important for children

(Editor's note: This is the last of a four-part series focusing on kids in the real world.)
By Daniel J. Ladd
Correspondent

The old adage "you are what you eat" is trite but true. And children develop eating habits at an early age that will stay with them for the rest of their lives.

In the age of fast-food meals, pizza, Chinese carry-out and ice cream, getting children to eat proper, balanced meals never has been more important, said Debbie Olson, chief clinical dietitian at Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital.

Olson said it is vital that parents and children work together to encourage proper eating habits.

"The parent is responsible for what kinds of food to bring into the house, and also for bringing the food to the table, but the child is responsible for how much and whether he'll eat it," Olson said.

It is important to find the healthy foods the child will enjoy, rather than force something healthy, but disliked, into a recalcitrant child.

"The parents do the shopping," Olson said. "If they don't buy cakes and candy, the kids won't have it to eat."

When most parents were children themselves, they were taught about the four basic food groups: Eat lots of red meat. Drink lots of milk, have some fruits or vegetables, and some nice, white bread. By today's standards, the diet people were taught as being healthy in the '50s or '60s is a recipe for obesity and clogged arteries.

In recent years, nutritionists have been recommending low-fat, high-carbohydrate foods. Food should have less than 30 percent of their calories coming from fat. People should eat less red meat and eat more grains and fiber.

One troubling problem for many dietitians is the type of food being served in school cafeterias. Olson, like many other experts, gives the schools a generally poor grade.

"They can always do better," Olson said. "Most schools in the last 10 years have gone back to the same fast-food meals."

A check of the menus put out by most area schools is usually a list of high-fat foods — pizza, tacos, sloppy joes, hamburgers, french fries and the ever-present later tots.

Brad Eavenson, director of food services for the Granite City School District, said that while the district does all it can to ensure that balanced, nutritious meals are offered at schools, many hurried students prefer to grab a sandwich and soda.

"At the high school level especially, I think the kids view (lunch period) as a socialization time. They get in a hurry to talk with friends and sometimes don't really take the time to get a balanced meal," even though the district offers a quick salad for those on the go.

The district is, however, utilizing that attitude to offer a breakfast program.

"A lot of kids just don't take the time to eat breakfast at home. The fact that they can eat breakfast with their friends (at school) triggers a response in them," Eavenson said. He said breakfast, now available at eight Granite City schools, is being served to an average of 125 children per day per school.

"Most of the schools don't serve lunch until 11:15 (a.m.)," Eavenson said. "That can be a long stretch in the morning. Studies show that both performance and behavior are improved with a healthy breakfast, so we try to get their engines running in the morning."

Eavenson said school menus must meet state and federal guidelines for nutritional value, and that the district attempts to buy products that carry a child nutritional label signifying that the foods meet government guidelines for minimum nutrition standards.

"Even the pizza we buy carries the (child nutrition) label," Eavenson said, adding that district menus are analyzed by the dietary department at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for fat content and nutritional value.

School officials sometimes complain that when they put healthy foods on school menus, children don't eat.

"One of our biggest problems is we are competing with the multi-million-dollar television industry which promotes food, like Coca-Cola," Eavenson said.

To combat that problem, TW Services, one of the nation's largest contract food service companies, has started a program called "The Canteen Creates Nutrition Club," which uses colorful cartoon characters to teach the importance of good lifelong eating habits to children.

Eavenson is working on implementation at the elementary school level of a nutrition education program put together by the American Heart Association.

"That's where we have to get to them — at the elementary level," Eavenson said.

Though such programs would help, the battleground is still the family dinner table, both Olson and Eavenson said. Because of today's active lifestyles, too many families rely far too much on the neighborhood McDonald's for meals.

"The responsibility still lies with the family," Olson said. "If you get a kid who's obese, look at the family. The family is in control of that, and they probably have poor eating habits."

"The problem for many parents is that when the child becomes a teenager, and develops more independence, all those years of wheat germ and oat bran can vanish in one trip to Pizza Hut with their friends."

Eavenson agreed. "We see a lot of lunches being carried in (from home) with snack foods, cakes and chips. Unfortunately, when the child does bring in a sandwich, often the chips and cakes get eaten, but the sandwich goes in the trash," he said.

"The thing that scares me the most is torture. For instance, getting paper cuts on my gums, ice picks under my toenails, sliding down a huge cheese grater into a pool of salty lemon juice. But the ultimate torture is eating school food." | Chieka Willis, Venice
"What scares me the most is when I look at the news and see young people my age getting killed, raped, shot, abused, or other bad things happening. The reason why it scares me, is because it could be me out in this dangerous world without parents, no place to go, nothing to eat, no clothes on my back and nobody to be loved by and that is what scares me the most." |
| Sarah Haddix, Granite City
"The thing that scares me most is my neighborhood at night. The reason is that my neighbors' houses have been broken into so many times it's really scary. That's why I don't like my neighborhood at night." | Harry Thomas, Madison
"What scares me are the teachers on the first day of school. I think they look at you or stare at you." | Jimmy Stevens, Granite City
"The thing that scares me the most is going to high school. The reason is because more homework, bigger school, and harder classes. I would love to stay in junior high." | Don Matthews, Venice
"What scares me the most is when our report cards come out every nine weeks. I am scared because my teachers always tell me that you need to work a little bit more and improve your grade, but they are really just pushing me to work a little bit and improve my grades even more so I can be a little bit higher in my grade." | Eric Dillon, Venice
"The Presidential election scares me the most. Because if Ross Perot becomes President, there will be lots of changes for black people." | La Neja Johnson, Venice
"Aids scares me because it's so easy to get and many different ways. You could get it by sharing drug needles and through blood transfusions, but the most popular way is by having sex, and a lot of teens today are sexually active. You could have sex with a person that has aids and not know they have it. Not all people with aids get sick as soon as they get it, it could take a long time for it to happen. Just because a person doesn't look like they could have it doesn't mean they don't." |

Scholars address Ladies Coterie

The September meeting of the Ladies Coterie was held Sept. 17 at the First Presbyterian Church with Elizabeth Briggs, hostess, and Elsie Rodell, president.

Virginia Oram presented two scholarship winners. The Music Scholarship recipient, Joan Hedrick, gave a demonstration of the double and single reed instruments, which she studied at the Drake University Summer Music Camp.

Jeanine McMillan, the HOBE Scholarship recipient, gave an account of the activities during the HOBE workshop at Illinois Wesleyan University. Both young ladies expressed their appreciation to the Ladies Coterie for the honor and its financial support.

The regular business meeting was then held. Diane Schwendemann was elected into membership.

Elcam plants — one in New Jersey and one in Nevada. Elcam received a hazardous waste permit, issued jointly by the U.S. and Illinois Environmental Protection agencies, Sept. 30.

It must also receive an air pollution control permit, already applied for, and a water pollution control permit, not yet applied for, before commencing operations.

In other action, Worthen told the council that confusion regarding city business licenses is being straightened out.

The city is withholding business licenses from about 100 city businesses due to zoning discrepancies, even though license fees have been paid.

Worthen said he met this week with Assistant City Attorney Susan Bacon and Zoning Administrator John Jakich to clear up the matter.

Of the approximately 100 businesses, only eight are in compliance with the city's zoning code.

License

The complainant served on the defendant despite repeated inquiries from the client over nearly three years, the commission told the council.

The disciplinary boards also found Scroggins had accepted a $400 fee to represent a grandchild in filing a child visitation order but never completed the work. The board said he also agreed to represent a client in seeking disability benefits and then took no action.

Scroggins represented a prosecutor from 1964 to 1968.

The Supreme Court declined to send the matter back for further hearings requested by Scroggins. He said in documents filed in the case that the commission failed to consider the effects of a December 1988 auto accident and other factors.

He said Starr's name is on a list of slightly more than 100 Republicans, targeting "winners" against incumbent Democrats.

The GOP list, called "Project 90," "gives the challenger at least $10,000 cash for use as the candidate wishes, and is based on the apparent success of the challenger's campaign thus far and the vulnerability of the incumbent."

"We're putting our money where our mouth is," Vander Jagt said.

He said Starr is also eligible for further party financial assistance, but that top GOP officials have not yet determined which candidates will receive those funds.

He said close to 100 Republican challengers, and candidates in "open" races nationally will receive "full funding" of between $30,000 and $50,000 each.

Vander Jagt said the GOP has raised roughly $1-million to support party incumbents, and that as much as $2.5 million is spent on challengers, and "open" seats nationwide.

He said the funds were primarily raised through donations of $100 or less.

Starr was appreciative of the pledge of support. "We've been running a grassroots campaign, based on local support. This will energize our campaign in the home stretch," employees to do the labor, has a place to haul the building materials when the house is down, and in a financial position to absorb the loss if the owner doesn't pay and if the property value won't cover the city's cost.

Houses

"Basically, you don't have the manpower and you don't have the money," Nighossian told the aldermen. "The only thing you have is Community Development."

Worthen said. They will be issued licenses shortly, he said.

He said another 35 of the non-conforming businesses, such as Bell Brothers Service Station and Jamboree Tavern, have been in business "many, many years," but the city has no record of their zoning.

Those buildings will receive the correct zoning by means of a "blanket ordinance" to be brought in next month, Worthen said.

He said an oversight has also caused residential zoning to remain in some small sections on the west side of Nameoki Road. A planned change to commercial zoning will bring five or six more businesses into compliance, Worthen said.

The remaining 26 businesses are "home occupations," a zoning classification once used by the city but no longer recognized in the zoning code.

Worthen has proposed an amendment to the zoning ordinance to include home occupations, he said. The Plan Commission is expected to review the amendment tonight.

Scroggins' petition contended that the penalty was too harsh.

In arguing against the suspension, Scroggins said the appeals of the criminal clients had been decided on the merits and he had not received payment from two of them.

In the case of two of the civil clients, he argued there was no evidence he was paid for any services, and in another case he had returned a fee.

He also complained he was not allowed to present evidence of the effect of a December 1988 traffic accident. Scroggins was hit by a pickup truck as he was crossing a street in Edwardsville and suffered a skull fracture, he said.

However, disciplinary commission noted that all but one of the charges occurred before the accident.

Sisters celebrate anniversary

The Sisters of Divine Providence celebrated the 60th anniversary of its presence at Mount Providence Motherhouse in Normandy on Sept. 26.

The sisters came to the Archdiocese of St. Louis to provide food, shelter and education to boys in need of daily care, naming their new institution "Mount Providence Boarding School for Boys." The school is now a co-educational day school with classes from kindergarten through eighth grade.

The 60th anniversary celebration marked a contemporary response to the sisters' original call to take in those in need of shelter. The sisters will bless a section of the building to be used as a day site for homeless women, children and families in St. Louis County. The new project, Room At The Inn, is co-sponsored by the Sisters of Divine Providence and Community in Partnership, a program of the Salvation Army. Local churches will provide shelter for the night, along with morning and evening meals.

The celebration included the dedication of a room to Mother Rosalia Weaver, the Province fondness, and the dedication of a memorial garden. The Sisters of Divine Providence, founded in Mainz, Germany in 1851, is an international community with three provinces in the U.S. Sisters from the St. Louis province minister in St. Louis and the nearby Illinois region, including the Chicago area, Nashville, Tenn., and the Rio Grande Valley in Texas, as well as internationally in Germany, Romania, and Peru, in the areas of education, health care and social services.

The Sisters of Divine Providence have recently made a corporate commitment to serve the homeless.

Warrior golfers going on to sectional

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Russ Chappell had a premonition prior to Tuesday's Class AA golf regional at Arlington. Chappell had a vision that senior golfer P.J. Hamilton would shoot 72 and lead the way for the Warriors. The dream came true for the most part as Hamilton shot a 74 to lead Granite City to a total of 314 and a berth in the Decatur Sectional next Tuesday at the Hickory Point Golf Course.

The Warriors finished fourth overall in a tight bunch, where four strokes separated the top four teams. Belleville East won the regional for the second year in a row with a total of 310. Edwardsville was second with a 311 and O'Fallon was third with a 312. The top four teams and 15 individuals go to the sectional.

Hamilton Mitchell

Hamilton, who had struggled most of the year, was sixth on the Warriors' list of six entrants, but finished tops among his teammates. Hamilton shot a 40 on the front nine, but came back with a 34 on the backside.

"I about flipped when I saw his score, then I hugged him," said Chappell. "I had a premonition. I also told him that if he had a bad day, I'd take him behind the woodshed."

With that in his mind, Hamilton had the best round of his prep career. But he almost didn't make the cut for the regional. He shot a 35 Monday in a qualifying round at Arlington to beat out Steve Rains and Dan Petersen.

"I don't know what it was, I just had a great day," said Hamilton. "I didn't think I'd come out and shoot a 74. I was just hoping for a 79 to help the team."

Hamilton got off to a rough start with a 7 on No. 3. But instead of throwing in the towel, he rebounded with four straight birdies.

"I didn't let a big number affect me," said Hamilton. "That happened to me earlier in the year, where I'd have a bad hole and I couldn't come back. But today, I was able to stay in there."

Doft (78) also broke 80 to help the Warriors cause. Ken Feltz and Matt Ruder both shot 85 for the fourth score. Mitchell and Hamilton will vie for the individual title as well. The cut for individuals was 78.

"I thought Josh, Kenny or Matt would scramble in with an 80," said Chappell. "Our three young kids got nervous. They didn't play in the regional last year, so this was a new experience for them."

If they would have gotten the 80, it would have given Chappell his first regional championship. The Warriors were just good enough to qualify, as Highland took fifth with a 316.

"I'm proud of the kids," said Chappell. "Now they have to take their show on the road."

The last time the Warriors made a sectional appearance at Clinton Hills in 1990 — they finished 11th out of a 12-team field. Chappell is hoping this time will be different.

"We have to go up there and manage the golf course," he said. "We'll practice Sunday and Monday and play Tuesday."

Spikers allergic to .500 record

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

The Warrior volleyball team must be allergic to the .500 mark. Every time it gets close, they have a bad reaction.

After beating Highland 15-4, 15-13 on Monday, Granite City came out flat and lost to East St. Louis 15-6, 16-14 on Tuesday. The loss gave the Warriors a record of 6-3 (.33) in the Southwestern Conference (losing into tonight's match at Belleville West).

Coach Cindy Gagich can't come up with an explanation as to why her team can't seem to get past the break-even point.

"If you can figure it out, let me know," said Gagich. "I firmly believe that it's mental toughness. This team has the talent to win, but they're lacking the desire to win."

"It's frustrating. I guess we need to re-evaluate ourselves and redefine some roles to refresh their memory as to what they're doing."

The Flyerettes, who haven't played a home game all year because of problems with their gym, showed no difficulty in adjusting to the impromptu road game, which began at 4:30 in Memorial Gym. They had little problem in winning the first game, but the Warriors couldn't do much of anything right.

Behind the serving of Amy Krakowicki (six service points) and JoAnn Gray (five), Granite City led most of the way through the second game. They were on the brink of forcing a third game with Krakowicki serving at 14-12. But a missed spike gave the ball — and the momentum — to the Flyerettes.

Kameeka Dixon served the last four points as East St. Louis improved to 12-4 on the year.

NOTES: There is some good news on the Warrior front. Granite City will be the top seed at the Collinsville regional on Oct. 27. Highland is the No. 2 seed, Triad is No. 3, and the host Kahoks are the No. 4 seed. The Warriors play in the McCluer North Tournament on Saturday.

Unbeaten Tigers up next for improving Warriors

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

The winless Collinsville Kahoks gave Edwardsville all it could handle last Friday. So Tigers coach Tim Dougherty isn't taking anything for granted in Friday's 7:30 p.m. game at Memorial Stadium against the Warriors.

Granite City is 1-4, with their victory coming 19-0 over Collinsville on Sept. 25. But the Kahoks bounced back and forced Edwardsville (5-0) to overtime before falling 33-30.

The Collinsville team that played Granite City wasn't the Collinsville team that played us," said Dougherty. "I've never been into comparative scores. I don't think it's a true indicator. There are too many intangibles."

"What I've seen and heard about (Granite City) is that they're a young team getting better and better each week, which concerns me. I don't think their record indicates what kind of team they are.

"The opposition, particularly who we're playing, are into a one-game season. (Being undefeated) creates a natural, emotional high for their kids going into the game. At this point, we have to stress that it's still game by game."

The Warriors might have come away from their 33-0 loss to East St. Louis last Friday feeling even better about themselves than they did after the Collinsville game. They played the Flyers to a virtual standstill in the second half.

Sure, the mighty Flyers made a bunch of lineup changes in the second half. But they have done that before and still added plenty of points to their total.

The loss officially eliminated Granite City from the playoff chase, but there were some good things happening.

"We got a great game out of John Tinnon on the defensive line," said coach Don Harris. (See FOOTBALL, Page 2B)

Kickers play scoreless tie; can't advance in tourney

Since the Warrior soccer team can't beat St. Louis teams this year, it's only natural that they not advance in the Tournament of Champions.

With 13 of the 16 teams from St. Louis, it was imperative that Granite City find the key to solving that problem. But the frustration only mounted Wednesday in a scoreless tie with Champlain. The Warriors are 0-1-1 in the tournament and were eliminated from contention for the Group B championship.

Francis Howell North, in fact, wrapped up Group B as a result of its 2-0 win over Oakville earlier Wednesday and the scoreless tie between the Warriors and Flyers. The Knights — in their first year in the tournament — still clinched a berth in the semifinals about as early as a team can.

The other three groups will fight it out today and Friday.

But the Warriors can only hope to salvage some pride in their 6:30 p.m. game Friday against Francis Howell North. They dominated the entire game Wednesday, but missed countless great scoring opportunities. It's been a familiar theme all year.

"It's all a result of what happens off the ball," said coach Gene Baker. "It's the same here as in basketball or any other sport. The players who do the right things away from the ball have success."

Senior all-star Jason Maxfield put on a show Wednesday, but came away with nothing to show for it. He hit the post twice and had Champlain players eating his dust all night.

"Jason took over," said Baker. (See SOCCER, Page 2B) guers play a large role in the community, and they should do what they can to help.

"A lot of people out there need our help," he said. "It's a worthy cause, and whatever we can do to help makes at that much more special."

Radio personality Tom Wheatley wasn't surprised the players came out for the game.

"These guys had a blast," said Wheatley. "It doesn't surprise me that they'd come out here on an off-day. These are the guys you would expect to see out here. They're a low-key bunch of guys and they like to have fun and at the same time help people."

Originally, the Cardinals were supposed to play a team from KASP Radio. But when the self-proclaimed "Slaminators" didn't show, the Cardinals split up and formed two teams with some help from the Kings.

Bryn Smith and Olivares served as managers for the two teams. While Smith may have the edge in major league experience, youth was served in this contest as Team Olivares pummeled the Smith squad 10-0. Olivares hit two homers in the eighth to propel his team to the win. He hit one off of Royer and the other came at the expense of Smith's son, Cody.

Olivares was joined by Tracy Woodson, Rod Brewer, and Pagnozzi. Team Smith featured Royer and Dan Pagnozzi, the brother of the Cardinal catcher. Todd Zeile was at the home-run hitting contest, but had to leave before game time due to a prior engagement.

"Marc Brokaw and Andy Richards are out there hitting. And we really cut down on our mistakes. The few we did make, of course a team like East St. Louis was able to take advantage."

"Dougherty was disappointed in his team's defense against Collinsville, a team that had scored just 25 points in its first four games."

"Our defense did not play

The batters were baffled by the unbelievable pitching of Tom "The Mex" McGowan and Darin "The Natural" Bene, who both threw for the Kings. Their mix of breaking balls and fast balls was too much for anyone to handle.

"This is nasty," said Royer after striking out on another curve ball. These guys have played so much and they throw the ball everywhere."

"There's no way I'd want to be catching that," said Pagnozzi.

"These guys are incredible." Lakeside Park, which comes the attributes of Fenway and Busch, provided the players a chance to be kids again and gave kids the chance to face big leaguers.

"I wish somebody would wake me up, I know I'm dreaming," said Chris Hill, a former GCHS and Post 113 pitcher. Hill got the opportunity to pitch against Royer and others.

"I always thought I'd be a ballplayer just like every other American kid," said Tom Pagnozzi. "We used to play wiffle ball in the back yard, but never anything like this. It's fun to do this every once in a while. This reminds me of those times."

Away from the business of baseball, away from the multi-million dollar contracts and the expectations attached to them, away from the glare of the spotlights, these major leaguers were kids again.

They kidded each other and laughed with the fans. They signed autographs and didn't charge for them. They had fun. And that's what baseball — and wiffle ball for that matter — is all about.

well," he said. "We're real concerned about that."

But the Tigers were sharp offensively, and were able to wipe away four Collinsville leads. Seniors Chris Kubicek and Jake Aumann benefited from an improving offensive line.

Kubicek, a running back, had 170 yards rushing, while Aumann completed nine of 12 passes for 148 yards.

Both players could qualify over Granite City could qualify over Edwardsville for

"He's like a palomino, but the rest of them seem to sit back and let him do it by himself at times. We're not attacking the net."

The absence of Brent Dippel creates a huge void in the lineup. The Warriors are 2-3-4 in their last nine games. That's virtually an unprecedented streak for a Baker-coached team. They are 0-4-3 against Missouri teams this year compared with 8-0-1 against Illinois teams.

"I prefer to look at it like a glass which is half-full rather than half-empty," he said. "We have not beaten a St. Louis team this year, but we're playing all the best ones, and we've played most of them without Dippel. And I can almost count some of these scoreless ties in which we outplayed the other team as wins."

That would include 0-0 ties with Hazelwood Central and McCluer North at the Hazelwood Central Tournament two weeks ago. In both of those games, the Blind site drawing slated for Sunday

Warriors had the better opportunities.

It was certainly that way again Wednesday night. Ben Hicks hit the post at 8:00; Paulie Bucherich hit the crossbar at 11:30; Corey Kessler got the ball past goalie Doug Holler, but it was cleared by defender Jeremy Iwaszkiewicz; Bucherich was just wide on a hard shot at 19:00; and Maxfield shot wide after a strong run a minute later.

Maxfield broke through again and again. He's performing up to all-state caliber again this year, although the scoresheet doesn't show it — yet. He seems ready at any minute to break through with a flurry of goals.

"We've had years like this where we've had trouble finishing off plays, but I try to forget them," said Baker. "We did a very good job defensively on players like Ben Bocklage and Sage McCellar."

Bocklage did have a couple of chances for Chaminate (6-8-2) in the second half. He was open for a shot inside the penalty area, but it sailed way high. Then-his hard shot from the right wing was smothered by senior goalie Cory Cooper, who picked up his fourth shutout.

Cooper has yet to allow a goal this year.

"Danny Clark had a very good game," said Baker. "We are improving as a team without Dippel in a lot of areas."

David Greene (Brendan Fraser) dances with Sally Wheeler (Amy Locane), in "School Ties."

Characters help carry 'School Ties'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

With scholarly locales that make it resemble a sequel to "Dead Poets Society," "School Ties" is a mildly satisfying movie about a Jewish student-athlete who faces prejudice when he goes off to preparatory school.

Brendan Fraser, who was last seen as the prehistoric "dude" unearthed in "Encino Man," plays David Greene, a star athlete from a lower middle-class

Jewish family in Scranton, Penn. The story, which is set in the 1950s, takes Fraser's character through the trials of ethnic intolerance as he stars on the private school's football team. He was recruited to the exclusive halls of higher learning because of his prowess at the sport.

His head coach recommends Fraser keep his faith to himself while attending the school. The coach, in fact, cautions, "Don't tell people more than they need to know."

Fraser is accepted immediately because of his likable personality and skills in sports. But when word leaks out that he is a Jew, the unfortunate but predictable occurs.

"School Ties" does not have a great script, but it does have a strong ensemble cast who bring passion to their performances. The film's ending is handled intelligently.
